

For many of PEEC's alumni, their connection to nature began here as students on a field trip, campers in a summer science program, or participants in an overnight river expedition.

These formative experiences introduced them to hands-on science and fostered a lasting connection to the outdoors, building the foundation for future careers in biology, environmental law, engineering, and teaching.

Their experiences were made possible by donors and supporters like you who believe in protecting our natural world and the importance of equitable access to environmental education.

When you become a Friend of PEEC, you ensure today's students have these same opportunities.

Your support fuels discovery and creates impact that lasts far beyond each field trip.

We hope you'll join us in inspiring the next generation of scientists, conservationists, and environmental leaders.
