PEEC'S ANNUAL "NON-EVENT" FUNDRAISER

SUPPORT THE NEXT GENERATION OF ENVIRONMENTAL STEWARDS

Tianna had never seen a waterfall in person before coming to PEEC this summer. As part of The Stained Glass Project, an after-school arts nonprofit serving high school students from Philadelphia, she created a scene of silver and blue water cascading over a cliff to portray the beauty of a waterfall in nature.

Students chose forest conservation as the theme for their annual project and chose PEEC as the place to visit and learn directly from an organization that provides education on this topic. For some, the trip was their first time away from the city. During their visit, they learned alongside PEEC's educational staff about forest ecology, human impacts on waterways, and ornithology. They had a chance to canoe, orienteer, and take part in team-building activities. To top it off, they made a trip to the local waterfall where Tianna finally got to see one in person! The Stained Glass Project's artwork now hangs in PEEC's main building in the windows of the EcoZone with a plaque that signifies the organizational partnership and the efforts of these students. I invite you to stop by and see these beautiful pieces during your next visit to PEEC.

I'd gladly share more stories like these with you and detail how your gift of $1,000 or more to PEEC helps us provide the space, staff, and experience to encourage more environmental connection efforts.

Sincerely,

Amanda Subjin, Chief Executive Officer

"Our students had an incredible time exploring the outdoors, learning together, and spending time together outside of the studio. The memories and confidence they gained from this experience will stay with them long after returning home." ~ The Stained Glass Project

PEEC'S ANNUAL "NON-EVENT" FUNDRAISER

Now more than ever, your support is critical for PEEC to connect thousands of people with the outdoors, expand access to environmental education, and foster a greater appreciation for nature. Here are just a few exciting highlights from this year, made possible with your generosity:

- Installed 2 new ADA-accessible log cabins, increasing access to overnight environmental education.
- Received Pennsylvania Environmental Council's 2026 Northeast Environmental Partnership Award in recognition of more than 50 years of outstanding commitment to environmental education and community partnership.
- Celebrated 15 years participating in Pennsylvania's Educational Improvement Tax Credit (EITC) program, providing hands-on environmental education to 10,000 students from Pike, Monroe, and Wayne Counties.

A gift of $1,000 or more to PEEC helps to make all of this possible, and allows us to continue to create meaningful experiences for people like Tianna to connect with nature.
